A.J.C. Charges Germany, Austria Prolong Actions To Impede Restitution

Because German opposition to restitution of expropriated Jewish property is increasing and threatens to endanger the whole program as more and more sovereignty is granted to the West German Government, speed is necessary in liquidating pending claims, according to a survey just completed by the American Jewish Committee at Paris, says the New York Times.

Only about one-sixth of returnable property taken from Jews during the Hitler regime in the present Western zones of Germany has been recovered, the committee said. The total value of such expropriated property has been estimated conservatively at $600,000,000. The bulk of the work remains to be done despite the fact that restitution laws have been in effect from two to four years.

Although considerable progress has been made in the United States and in the French zones, the survey found that only a start had been made in the British zone and in the Western sectors of Berlin, where most of the property was located.

There have been three categories of such assets, including those claimed by Jews still alive or by their recognized heirs, those that belong to Jewish communities as a whole (synagogues, children's homes, etc.) and property belonging to Jews who died and have no heirs.

In Western Berlin alone, some 96,000 individual claims have been filed, but only 10,000 of these have been settled. Heirless property, which according to an Allied decision would be used for the benefit of Jewish refugees as a group, is the subject of 100,000 claims by the Jewish Restitution Successor Organization set up about a year and a half ago. The committee said the Germans have increased the difficulties, carrying on prolonged court actions in the belief that time was with them.

In Austria, a third of the 23,000 claims filed by Jews remains to be settled by the courts. However, a great deal of the property lacks heirs. A vigorous campaign is being carried on in both countries to nullify, emasculate or replace existing legislation dealing with restitution in order to impede completion of the programs, the committee charged, according to the Times.

Even if restitution is completed, another problem will remain, the committee found. Much of the re-

Two thousand persons attended ceremonies in New York marking the official opening of the international headquarters of the Histadrut, the National Committee for Labor Israel, in the Western Hemisphere. Mayor Impellitteri cut a blue and white ribbon at the entrance of the five-story building at 33 East Sixty-seventh Street. In the afternoon a rally was held at Temple Emanu-El.

Representative Jacob K. Mr. Javits urged establishment of an organization for Middle East economic cooperation, "or at the

Priceless Ms., Nazi Loot, Gets To N.Y., Belongs To Baron

A priceless medieval manuscript has been lost to the Jewish Theological Seminary because its head librarian is such a keen literary sleuth. The story was told at a small luncheon in the Seminary, on Broadway, in N.Y., as officials awaited instructions for restoring the treasure to its rightful owner, Baron James de Rothschild, of London.

The scholarly mystery-tale started just a little more than a year ago when a Berlin dealer got in touch with Prof. Alexander Marx, director of libraries for the Seminary, and an internationally known authority on Jewish history and historical documents. The dealer told Dr. Marx that two men had approached him on behalf of an unnamed client, who, they hinted, was an East German nobleman anxious for some West German marks. These agents asked the dealer to sell a volume in which Dr. Marx might be interested — a bound volume of medieval Hebrew manuscripts with 222 illustrations.

Even this meager description interested Dr. Marx very much. Wartime looting by the Nazis had spread precious manuscripts far and wide and real finds were possible. He cabled and asked to have the volume sent to him for inspection, and it arrived by airmail a few days later. Treasures like it rarely appear in trade channels, so it is impossible to put a price on it, he said in reply to a question put by the New York Times.

"The German book dealer asked a ridiculously low price — $5,000," he added with another wistful look at a double-page painting showing the flocks and farms with which the Lord rewarded Job for his patience. The volume would have been an unbelievable bargain at $5,000, but Dr. Marx knew he could not keep it.

The manuscript unquestionably was the one listed as manuscript No. 24 in the looted Baron James de Rothschild collection—a series of forty texts bound together and profusely illustrated by unknown artists in northern Italy late in the fifteenth century. Having identified the volume, Dr. Marx talked the matter over with Allan M. Stroock, chairman of the Seminary's board. Mr. Stroock, an attorney, said that to give the Seminary legal grounds for not returning the manuscript to the unnamed alleged German owner a court suit was needed.

As a result, Mr. Stroock wrote to Baron de Rothschild and in effect asked him to sue the Seminary for the return of his property.

Accordingly, representatives of the Baron filed papers in New York County Supreme Court and an order recently was signed restoring the manuscript to its pre-war owner. The Seminary is waiting now for the designation of a courier authorized to take it to Europe.

Jews Attack Plan For Religion In N.Y. Schools

N.Y. State Solicitor General Wendell Brown asserted before the Court of Appeals that the New York State practice of releasing public school students to attend outside religious classes "permits the very freedom of religion which the constitution of the United States and of this state guarantee."

The high court reserved decision on an action brought by Tessim Zorach, a Protestant, and Mrs. Esta Gluck, who is Jewish, challenging the constitutionality of New York State's "released-time" program.

A ruling in the matter will come at the earliest on July 11. A joint brief in support of the Zorach-Gluck appeal was filed with the court by the American Jewish Committee, the American Jewish Congress and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

A friend-of-the-court brief opposing it was filed by the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., which said that more than forty Protestant denominations associated with the International Council of Religious Education had endorsed released-time religious instruction, says the New York Times.

The Appellate Division, Second Department, by a 3-to-2 decision last January 15, had affirmed a ruling by State Supreme Court

N.Y. CITY AND YESHIVA U. UNITE FOR FIRST JEWISH MEDICAL CENTER IN U.S.; TO COST OVER 61 MILLION

New York City and Yeshiva University have united their plans for a hospital and medical center in the Bronx to form a $61,500,000 institution. City authorities will make available the facilities of the Municipal Hospital Center, now under construction, for the projected medical school. The city is spending $36,500,000 on its 500-bed tuberculosis and 750-bed general hospital, to be known as the Bronx Municipal General Hospital. The tuberculosis section is scheduled for completion next June.

Last December the Board of Regents gave Yeshiva University a charter to operate a medical and dental school. After several conferences between the city officials and the university trustees, the offer of affiliation with the municipal hospital was accepted.

The Bronx is now without a medical school. Two years ago the Bronx Board of Trade campaigned to have the State University construct a medical center within its borough. However, the university took over the existing facilities of the Long Island College of Medicine in Brooklyn. The president of the Bronx Board of Trade, Thomas V. Tozzi, assured the university of "continued interest."

This is the first time in fifty-two years that a new medical school is to be built in the city. Under the proposed arrangement, as disclosed by Dr. Marcus Kogel, City Commissioner of Hospitals, Yeshiva University will erect its $25,000,000 medical center adjacent to the Bronx hospital, at Pelham Parkway South, Eastchester Road and Seminole Avenue. The first building to be constructed by the university will be a $10,000,000 medical school. Other schools will follow later.

A pre-planning study of the medical center by Isadore Rosenfield, architect, shows a huge plant containing twelve buildings. There will be the basic science building, library, administration and laboratories, auditorium, medical and dental students residence, school of dentistry, school of nursing nurses' residence, utilities building, general hospital, future school of public health and future research laboratories.

In offering its facilities, the city will permit the medical school of Yeshiva University to appoint the professional staff of the hospital. In practice, the university professors will be in charge of the hospital program. For example, the Yeshiva professor of medicine would become the head of the hospital's medical service, while the professor of surgery would be the head of the surgery department of the hospital. This cooperation, explained Dr. Kogel, would prove mutually advantageous to both the city and to the university's medical school.

Speaking for Yeshiva University, its president, Dr. Samuel Belkin, said that the joint arrangement would help the hospital and the medical school be of greater service to the community. Pointing out that the Bronx, in spite of its population of 1,500,000, does not have a medical school, Dr. Belkin observed:

"The establishment of the Yeshiva University medical school will make it possible to render increased health facilities for the people in the borough. Through the integration of the medical school with the city-sponsored Bronx Municipal Hospital we will be able to pioneer in unexplored areas of medicine, teaching and training."

Under present plans the Yeshiva medical school will probably get under way in the fall of 1953. At that time, it is hoped, the Bronx municipal hospital will be ready to absorb the students. According to Dr. Belkin, the medical and dental schools will be "Grade A" in every respect. It is planned to provide for 400 students in each of the two schools. Dr. Belkin said that the sole criterion for admission would be merit, ability, and character.

Even though this is to be the first medical school in the U.S. under Jewish auspices, it will be operated wholly on a non-sectarian basis. According to Dr. Belkin, no distinction will be made as to the origin, race, creed, color, or religion of the applicants.

To get the best advice and guidance in the field, the university has created an advisory council on medical education and an educational advisory council. The latter committee, consisting of twenty-two educational leaders, is headed by Dr. Lewis A. Wilson, New York State Commissioner of Education.

Dr. Harry Zimmerman, chief pathologist and head of the laboratory division of Montefiore Hospital, is chairman of the advisory council on medical education. Eleven leading medical authorities are on this council.

At a conference between the city officials and the university leaders, Mayor Impellitteri has assured Dr. Belkin of "complete cooperation" in the affiliation of the Bronx municipal hospital with the medical school. The five existing medical schools in the city are all affiliated with municipal hospitals at the present time.

In creating a $61,500,000 hospital-medical center, the Bronx will have one of the largest and most comprehensive centers of its kind in the city if not the entire country. In a recent message to the university, Governor Dewey, who received the honorary degree of Doctor of Law from Yeshiva University, wrote to Dr. Belkin that "by expanding in the medical science area, Yeshiva University will be contributing a noteworthy service to the health and welfare of our citizens."

Twenty Parties Name Candidates In Israel Election

Twenty parties entered lists for Israel's parliamentary elections on July 30. The entries closed after the names of 1,285 candidates had been submitted to the Central Elections Committee, in Tel Aviv.

The principal contenders in the elections are expected to be Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's Mapai (Socialist) party, which is the largest in the outgoing Legislature and holds the balance of power; the pro-Soviet Mapam, which follows the Communist line except where it conflicts with Zionism; and the General Zionists, who are campaigning for relaxation of economic controls. The latter, who won only six seats in the 1949 elections, are expected to make substantial gains this year.

Of the new crop of candidates, the most significant is Levi Eshkol of the Mapai. He is treasurer of the Jewish Agency Executive and is being groomed by Mr. Ben-Gurion for the finance portfolio in the Cabinet, according to the New York Times. His candidacy for the Knesset (Parliament) is regarded as a sign he is being considered as the successor to the ailing Finance Minister Eliezer Kaplan.

Mr. Kaplan is also a candidate for the Knesset. Two other members of the Government are not standing for election. They are Rabbi Jude L. Maimon, Minister for Religious Affairs, who lost the leadership of his Mizrachi party to business interests, and Yaakov Geri, Minister of Trade and Industry, who is a non-party man.

Rudolf G. Sonneborn, national chairman of the United Jewish Appeal and president of the American Financial and Development Corporation, said the New York Herald Tribune, on departing for England and Israel on the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth, that David Ben-Gurion would be Israel's next Premier regardless of the outcome of the election. All talk to the contrary he said, was just "symptomatic of an election."

Morgan's Budget House Shows Taste And Charm

The trend today is for beautifully-decorated homes, not only for the upper-income bracket, but for the budget-conscious, as Henry Morgan & Co. Limited has shown so well in furnishing the "Young Home Planner's Budget House". It's the exhibit home in Riverside Park, the new, residential bungalow development, adjoining the Royal Montreal Golf Club, at Dixie, and overlooking Lake St. Louis.

This charming six-room bungalow, with three bedrooms, the first completed in this new development, is of the increasingly-popular ranch-type house.

Completely equipped by Morgan's for $2,500, which includes the cost of a stove and refrigerator, furniture and carpets, and all ready to live in, it reflects the charm, colour and comfort, the flair for the modern or the casual, which families of today introduce into their way of life. Smart modern forms, subtle decorative motifs, and cheerfully-blended designs create here an atmosphere of healthful, pleasant living, in this decidedly well-planned and scientifically arranged home for the family of good taste.

LAMP SHADES We offer a new kind of home decoration epitomized in illumination. Our most careful workmanship and good taste — long experience, best variety of materials (parchment, silk, plastics) and modern technique of finishing, provide you with beautiful lamp shades for any kind of lamps at prices that please all.

Ships Sail, Girls Weep, Crews Back To Normal

New York waved "Shalom and godspeed" to the crews of the two Israeli warships, "Misgav" and "Haganah," as they left the Todd shipyards at Erie Basin, Brooklyn, for the return voyage to Haifa. The departure marked the end of a forty-three-day goodwill tour during which the 120 members, representing Israel's thirty-five nationalities, visited key cities to spur Israel's drive to sell $500,000,000 in bonds. And as they wrote "Mission Accomplished" into their log, they could report $65,000,000 in bond sales and some wounded hearts.

A group of weeping girls waved wanly from the gates. Comdr. Shlomo Erel, 30 years old, said there would have been more broken hearts had the crews not received a thorough briefing before shore leaves. Even so, Commander Erel, whose name means "Angel", admitted having received three applications from crew members to marry American girls. And Seaman Paul Dejong, originally from Johannesburg, South Africa, said he might have left his heart in Los Angeles.

"They've all been spoiled through their receptions here," Commander Erel said. "They will have to stop being glamour boys now and get back into training."

Besides informal farewells, there were formal ones. Col. Chaim Herzog, Military, Naval and Air Attaché at the Israeli Embassy in Washington, who reviewed the crews and, speaking in Hebrew, praised them for their "exemplary discipline and appearance" as "ambassadors of Israel."

Arthur Lourie, Israeli Consul General, thanked the American public for the reception accorded the young Navy of Israel. Dr. Israel Goldstein, chairman of the executive committee of the Greater New York Committee of the State of Israel Bonds, and Comdr. Joshua Goldberg, chief chaplain for the Third Naval District, also spoke.

In a last-minute ceremony Capt David D. Hawkins, director of training for the Third Naval District, read a message from Rear Admiral Walter S. DeLany, its commandant, saying, "You have all made a fine and lasting impression." In return Commander Erel presented the blue-and-white Star of David flag to Captain Hawkins. And, as the ships steamed out, Captain Hawkins said, "They're darn good Joes."

New Issue Of Hebrew Medical Journal Is Out

The appearance of the Spring issue, Volume 1, 1951, of The Hebrew Medical Journal (Harofe Haivri) inaugurates the 24th year of its publication under the editorship of Dr. Moses Einhorn. Written in Hebrew, with English summaries, the Journal is a contribution to the development of the Hebrew medical literature, and thus aids the newly established Hebrew University Medical School in Jerusalem.

The articles are written in a manner to interest not only physicians but laymen as well. In addition to the usual medical articles, under the heading of "Old Hebrew Medical Manuscripts", there are presented an interesting treatise on "Persian Medicine and Its Relation to Jewish and Other Medical Science, Commemorating the Millennium of Avicenna", by Dr. Zussmann Muntner of Jerusalem, and an article on "Medical Material in the Code of Karaite Law of Elijah Bashyatchi", by Dr. Leon Nemoy, of Yale University.

In the section, "Israel and Health", Dr. Chaim Berlin discusses "Venereal Diseases in Israel", and Dr. Mordecai Hexter writes on "The Care of Deaf-Mutes in Israel". The original articles are summarized in English to make them available to those unable to read Hebrew. For further information, communicate with the editorial office of The Hebrew Medical Journal, 983 Park Avenue, New York 28, N.Y.

To Teach New Ear Operation In Israel

Dr. Samuel Rosen, associate otologist at Mount Sinai Hospital in New York, went to Israel at the invitation of the Government to visit that country for a tour of lectures and guest operations under the sponsorship of the Oto-Laryngological Society. Dr. Rosen, who has developed a new surgical technique in treating deafness, vertigo and ear noises, was invited by the Israel Ministry of Health to "help us raise our standards of special surgery in this country, so that we can compete in all fairness with the more advanced of civilized countries."

A graduate of the Syracuse University College of Medicine, Dr. Rosen has been on the staff of Mount Sinai Hospital since 1925. He has contributed to improving the delicate fenestration operation for deafness. For the past five years, he has been developing new procedures in the treatment of Meniere's disease, where the patient suffers from severe vertigo, ear noises and deafness. On his tour of the medical centers in Israel, Dr. Rosen will lecture, operate upon afflicted patients, and teach the surgical technique.

Mrs. Shalinsky, the hostess, wore a silk flowered dress in a tomato-red shade; and had black accessories. Mrs. Merson, mother of the bride-elect, wore a beige and white striped silk suit. Miss Merson, the honouree, wore a navy-blue dress with white trimming. Present were: Mesdames Charles Merson, Ben. Goldenberg, Samuel Levine, Michael Rodman, Irving Katz, I. Barrack; and Misses Betty Rosen, Betty Seni, and Freda Bass. A presentation was made by Mrs. Sam. Solomon, of Burlington, Vt., sister of the hostess. The marriage will take place at the home of Rev. L. Syrek, Esplanade Avenue, on July 15.

Solomon, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cytrynbaum, 88 Joyce Avenue, was called to the Reading of the Law at Adath Israel Synagogue, in celebration of his bar-mitzvah. He is the brother of Mrs. H. Shell (Sophie); Lea and Ben Cytrynbaum. At a dinner in the community hall of the synagogue there were one hundred guests. There were centrepieces of variegated spring flowers on the tables and a cake made in the shape of a Torah. Solomon, the bar-mitzvah boy, spoke; and Cantor Eugene Goldberger sang. Mrs. Cytrynbaum, mother of the bar-mitzvah boy, received, wearing a navy-blue sheer dress, with a collar which was embroidered in white, and had a white straw hat. Present from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Shubert, Irving Jacobson, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Jacobson, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. I. Jacobson and daughters, Edith and Zelda, of Ottawa, Ont., all uncles, aunts, and cousins of the bar-mitzvah boy. Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Jacobson, and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bloch, his uncles and aunts, of Montreal, were also present.

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Zaitlin, 730a Querbes Avenue, entertained about forty guests, members of the immediate families, in celebration of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beatrice Zaitlin, to Stanley Rabinovitch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rabinovitch, Esplanade Avenue. Mrs. Zaitlin wore a navy-blue crepe dress, having a round neckline and slim skirt; and Mrs. Rabinovitch, a navy-blue and white crepe dress, with a white straw hat. Mrs. M. Zaitlin, Bloomfield Avenue, grandmother of the bride, wore a beige crepe dress, trimmed with lace; and Mrs. Celia Berlin, Somerled Avenue, grandmother of the groom, wore a beige and black printed crepe dress. Miss Shirley Zaitlin, sister of the bride, in a black taffeta dress, with pink and green threading, made with a low neckline and full skirt, played the piano, accompanying Mr. Zaitlin, her father, who sang an operatic aria. Miss Beatrice Zaitlin, the honoree, wore a navy-blue nylon marquisette dress, designed with a Chinese-styled neckline, and full skirt; and had a corsage of baby red roses. Red and white carnations, and a bouquet of roses, the gift of the groom-elect, were used for adornment of the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kenigsberg, 5877 Esplanade Avenue, celebrated the engagement of their eldest daughter, Miss Helen Kenigsberg, to Alec Yellin, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Yellin, Trans Island Avenue, at a party at the home of Mrs. R. Bloom, Durocher Avenue, grandmother of the bride-elect. Mrs. Kenigsberg, mother of the bride-elect, wore a navy-blue lace cocktail dress, over navy-blue taffeta, with a matching lace jacket; and Mrs. Yellin, mother of the groom-elect, wore a navy-blue crepe afternoon dress. Mrs. Bloom, the hostess, wore a printed grey crepe dress. The bride-elect is the granddaughter also of Mr. and Mrs. S. Kenigsberg, St. Urbain Street, and the latter wore a grey crepe suit-dress. Miss Kenigsberg, the honoree, wore a navy-blue net cocktail dress, over mauve taffeta, designed with a strapless neckline, flared skirt, and matching stole, and had a mauve orchid corsage. The party was the occasion also for the celebration of her twentieth birthday. Roses, carnations, and peonies were used for decoration throughout the house; and there were vases of roses in the living-room and the hall. The dining room was decorated in all-white. Sixty guests were present at the dinner-table. J. Shapransky, of Joliette, the great-uncle of the bride-elect, said the prayers. Mrs. Shapransky was there; and also, I. Goldman, of Joliette. Mr. Yellin, the groom-elect, is going into the fourth year in the Faculty of Commerce at McGill University. The marriage will take place next June 15.

A representative of the Japanese Foreign Ministry in London told an Israeli radio correspondent that the Japanese Government was interested in establishing diplomatic and economic relations with Israel as soon as Japan achieved full sovereignty, reports 'Kol Israel'. Contact would be established first by the Japanese Ambassadors who would be appointed to Western capitals on the signing of the peace treaty. There is already a special department in the Japanese Foreign Ministry for Israel, the correspondent was told. As the "only industrial States in Asia", Japan and Israel could assist each other. A society for cultural and commercial relations with Israel has been founded in Japan. All its members are non-Jews. According to the broadcast, there are at present 160 Jews in Japan, most of them in Tokyo, in addition to some 550 Jewish soldiers serving in the U. S. forces.

Success Came With Vocational Service Help

BY ALFRED FEINTUCH, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR, JEWISH VOCATIONAL SERVICE OF MONTREAL

"May I see Miss Stein, please?" excitedly asked the middle aged woman of the receptionist at the desk. "I don't have an appointment but it will only take a few minutes. I have such good news to tell her." Her chic, well dressed appearance and her air of self-confidence and prosperity contrasted sharply with that of the many New Canadians who were in the waiting room of the Jewish Vocational Service patiently waiting their turn to be interviewed. It was only her heavily accented voice and its foreign ring which she appeared to have in common with these newly arrived immigrants.

Looking at Mrs. Abramovitch, tall, well-dressed and attractive, one could hardly believe that a little over three years ago she had visited our offices for the first time as a newly arrived immigrant. At that time, demoralized and drained of physical and emotional stamina as a result of her sufferings in the concentration camps of Europe, she resembled thousands of Jewish immigrants who had come to Canada with the help of the Jewish community. Like many who had settled in Montreal, she turned to our agency for vocational guidance and assistance in finding employment.

In her first interview at the Jewish Vocational Service, soon after her arrival in Canada, Mrs. Abramovitch told our counselor that she had recently arrived with her husband and four year old child. She was very much concerned about her husband's poor health which did not allow him to work regularly. He might be able to work for short periods of time, whenever his health allowed, but she could not count on this work to support the family. It was therefore urgent that she plan for permanent employment for herself. She explained that she could leave her daughter with friends while she worked, until the following year when the child would be old enough to attend nursery school.

"Couldn't I take a course in cosmetics?" she asked, "and then go into a beauty parlour to take additional training?"

She had apparently met some people in Paris who were successfully self-employed as cosmeticians. Our counselor reviewed this field with her. Mrs. Abramovitch learned that this is a highly specialized field in which there are few opportunities for training and practically no job opportunities. In Canada, it is generally part of the training and work of hairdressers. When Mrs. Abramovitch learned that it was associated with hairdressing, she quickly dropped the idea. "I never could stand working on people's hair", she said quite emphatically.

In the several counselling interviews that followed, our counselor tried to help Mrs. Abramovitch determine the kind of work she would be capable of and interested in doing. She was helped to explore her abilities and her aptitudes, her interest and her strong and weak points from a vocational point of view. We found that Mrs. Abramovitch had had no previous work experience. In addition she was completely unaware of the kinds of jobs that were available in Canada. She was terrified when she thought she might have to do unskilled work in a factory.

She had heard that, without a knowledge of the English language and with no skill or work experience to fall back upon, it might be necessary for her to do unskilled factory work. Like so many immigrants, she brought with her the feeling that such work would be degrading to her. Mrs. Abramovitch required a great deal of understanding and reassurance from our counselor since she was very fearful about the whole experience of getting a job. It was quite some time before Mrs. Abramovitch accepted the fact that many Jewish women in Canada and in the United States work in factories and that it is not considered degrading.

In describing the different kinds of work that were available, our counselor discussed her immediate adjustment to the labour market, and also the possibility of a better long range adjustment. We explained that many recently arrived immigrants, without marketable skills and without the ability to speak English properly, generally take any kind of job to support themselves until they learn the language and acquire the necessary skills for better jobs. We explained that it was not necessary for her to feel that her first jobs in Canada would be the kind of work that she must do forever. While working on these jobs, she could be preparing herself for work on a more skilled level.

Mrs. Abramovitch stressed the fact that she would like to do something creative. In our discussion, we learned that she liked to do things with her hands. Thus, for example, she had always enjoyed making her own hats. Our counselor inquired whether she had ever thought of becoming a milliner, with the possibility of designing her own hats. We pointed out that it might be a long while before she could do designing on a commercial basis. However, she might be interested in taking a course in millinery in the evening to explore her potentialities in this field. Mrs. Abramovitch seemed very interested in this suggestion. Although she hadn't thought of it as an occupation for herself, she felt that it was worthwhile investigating. Our counselor suggested a recognized school that gives this training and stressed the importance of improving her English. In the meantime, she was helped to find employment in a local factory.

Mrs. Abramovitch registered in the evening millinery course at the Central Arts and Crafts School. At the completion of the course six months later, she returned for a further interview with our counselor. She explained that she had completed the course satisfactorily and had found it to be both inexpensive and valuable. On the basis of this training she felt that she had more talent in this area than she had previously realized. She enjoyed her work and had recently started to make and sell hats to her friends. On her own initiative, she had contacted some of the small millinery shops in Montreal and was doing part-time work for them.

Encouraged and reassured by our counselor as to her progress, Mrs. Abramovitch added that she was discussing with some friends, who had capital to invest, the possibility of opening a small millinery shop in partnership with her. Our counselor indicated to Mrs. Abramovitch that she was pleased to hear that things were turning out well and that she would be very interested in knowing when she established her own business. Three months later we received an invitation to the opening of Mrs. Abramovitch's new millinery shop. Subsequently, Mrs. Abramovitch telephoned the counselor to tell her that her husband had passed away and that she was supporting herself and her daughter from her income in the business. She had bought out her partner and had gone into business for herself. One year later, which brings us to the present, Mrs. Abramovitch was in the office to say that she was moving into larger quarters.

Except for her real name and some minor incidents, which were changed to avoid revealing her identity, the story of Mrs. Abramovitch was taken from the case files of the Jewish Vocational Service. It is typical of the assistance which many new Canadians receive from this agency. While her vocational adjustment has been somewhat more dramatic than that of most refugees, it is nevertheless indicative of the fine adjustment which many immigrants are making to the Canadian economic scene.

MARRIAGES

BERCOVITCH-KAPE

The marriage of Shirley Helene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kape, 4671 Harvard Avenue, to Melvin Bercovitch, son of Mrs. Udith Bercovitch, 3165 Linton Boulevard, and the late Jack Bercovitch, took place at Shaare Zion Synagogue on Sunday, June 17, at half-past three o'clock, Rabbi Maurice S. Cohen officiating. Cantor S. Miller and Cantor Gabriel Berkovits assisted. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white taffeta, covered with embroidered tulle, having a high neckline, with a pointed collar, long sleeves, and tightly-fitted bodice, with buttons to the waist, and a full skirt, with medium-length train. She had an open-crown pleated hat of tulle, with a fingertip-length tulle illusion veil, and carried white orchids on a white bible, with ribbon streamers. Miss Shirley Bercovitch, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. She wore a green iridescent silk taffeta dress, designed with a halter-style neckline, and very full bouffant skirt, with a matching organdy underskirt, and a matching, tightly-fitted jacket, with three-quarter-length sleeves. Her headdress was a matching green pill-box hat, with apple-green veiling draped high in the front, and low in the back, and she had shoes to match. She carried a bouquet of carnations tinted light green to match the hat-veiling and shoes. Mort. Kape, brother of the bride, was best man. Standards of white peonies, and palms, were used to decorate the synagogue, and white ribbons marked the aisle. "Because" was sung during the ceremony. For a tea reception at the synagogue, white peonies were used to decorate. Two hundred guests were present. Mrs. Kape, mother of the bride, wore a shantung taffeta cocktail dress of rose-beige shade, with a navy-blue velvet picture hat, and corsage of dusty-pink roses. Mrs. Bercovitch, mother of the groom, wore a cocktail dress of black Chantilly lace over white satin, with a matching hat, her corsage being of purple orchids. The bride and groom are spending their wedding trip in New York, and Atlantic City, N. J., the bride going away in a navy-blue sheer dress, with white accessories. They will live in Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Myer Lifshitz, of Plattsburg, N.Y., cousins of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Shustack, of Victoriaville, uncle and aunt of the groom, were present.

PUGASH-WEINSTEIN

The marriage of Rhea Dianne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Weinstein, 4815 Hampton Avenue, to Harold Pugash, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Pugash, 2801 Maplewood Avenue, took place at the home of the bride's parents, on Sunday, June 17, at half-past twelve o'clock. Rabbi Maurice Cohen officiated, assisted by Cantor S. Miller, and Cantor Gabriel Berkovits. Mrs. Weinstein gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of white Chantilly lace over white net. It had a strapless neckline, fitted bodice, and very full floor-length skirt, over a tulle underskirt, with a matching jacket, having a low neckline, and long sleeves, with points over the wrists. Her pearl-beaded tulle headdress was draped with a fingertip-length tulle veil, and she carried a bible, covered with a white orchid and stephanotis. Mrs. Louis Malis, sister of the groom, was matron of honor, in a gown of white and cinnamon-brown organza. Made with a V-neckline, and capelet sleeves, it had a full skirt, with cinnamon-brown velvet tie, with streamer-ending, at the waistline. She had a toast-colored lace hat, matching accessories, and a nosegay of roses and carnations. Harold Weinstein, brother of the groom, was best man. There was a reception in the garden, following the ceremony. Mrs. Weinstein, mother of the bride, wore a mauve chiffon gown, over lavender-shaded taffeta; also a deep purple velvet hat, and purple accessories. Mrs. Pugash, mother of the groom, wore a gown of dark brown sheer, with lace trimming, and matching ninon hat and veil, with matching accessories. Each had a corsage bouquet of orchids. The bride and groom left by motor for the United States, to travel to Florida, the bride wearing a pale turquoise-blue linen suit, with white accessories. They will live on Ridgevale Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Weinstein, of Timmins, Ont., uncle and aunt of the bride; Mrs. S. Schwartz, of Halifax, N. S., aunt of the bride; and Dr. Charles Buckman, of New York, uncle of the groom, were present. The bride graduated this spring from the School of Physiotherapy, at McGill University. The groom graduated from there in 1949, from the Faculty of Arts.

To Promote New Techniques In Jewish Education

A national information center on Jewish audio-visual materials, to coordinate the distribution and use of films, filmstrips, recordings and similar modern educational techniques in Jewish education for youth and adults, and to stimulate the production of new materials, will be organized by the National Council on Jewish Audio-Visual Materials. The Council, sponsored by the American Association for Jewish Education, is composed of the representatives of 23 major national agencies and local coordinating organizations engaged in Jewish education on all age levels. Established in 1949, it seeks to promote the use of these modern educational techniques in Jewish classrooms and institutions throughout the country, in order to make Jewish education a concrete and stimulating experience in the life of the child, youth or adult.

The American Association for Jewish Education, which organized the audio visual council and provides the major part of its operating funds, undertook to underwrite the majority of the budget of the audio-visual center, which will furnish information on available materials, arrange workshops and screenings, serve as a center for review of new materials, offer consultation on the production and distribution of audio-visual aids, and provide guidance on techniques in audio-visual education. At the annual meeting, at which Harry Starr, chairman of the Council and vice-president of the A.A.J.E., presided, it was decided to extend its activities beyond films and filmstrips into the field of records, display materials, radio, television and other audio-visual instruments. Provision was also made for the expansion of the Council to include central education agencies in a number of cities.

In a report to the annual meeting, Dr. Zalmen Slesinger, secretary of the Council, and director of Pedagogics and Curricular Materials of the American Association for Jewish Education, pointed out that the Association considered audio-visual education a primary means for improving the standards and content of Jewish schools throughout the country. "Jewish education," he said, "places emphasis on material which is indirectly and remotely related to the immediate experiences of American Jews. To make this Jewish heritage meaningful to our children, youth and adults, it must be dramatized, vitalized and made relevant to their immediate lives. Teaching Jewish history to school children, presenting Israel to a membership meeting, planning an intercultural program, organizing institutes for adults, conducting a form on major Jewish issues, are tasks which can be achieved best through the full use of audio-visual techniques. In the absence of such techniques, the fruits of our educational efforts are likely to be sparse and meagre."

Dr. Slesinger pointed out that the major problem today is the production of effective visual and recorded material to meet the needs of the Jewish community. Summarizing the experiences of the Council in reviewing films and filmstrips in the past year, he declared: "It is safe to state that with few exceptions, the audio-visual material available leaves much to be desired, both educationally and technically." Evaluations of audio-visual materials made by the Council appear in its regular bulletin, the Jewish Audio-Visual Review.

In the effort to spur the use of audio-visual aids, in order to make Jewish education as attractive and effective as possible, the American Association recently published a Manual on Audio-Visual Aids for Jewish Education, written by two outstanding authorities in the field. This manual, which constitutes a basic guide to the use of audio-visual techniques, is available from the American Association.

ORT Opens Training Center In Tunis

At the laying the foundation stone of the new ORT-Alliance training center in Tunis, a dedication ceremony was presided over by Judge Leon Meiss, of France, president of the Central Board of the World ORT Union (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training). The new school, at which ORT will provide vocational training while the Alliance will instruct students in academic subjects, was hailed by the press and local officials. This permanent structure will permit extensive training of Jewish youth in Tunis where, until recently, 76 youth and 40 adults attended the provisional ORT center learning mechanics, electrical trades, machine shop and welding.

Judge Meiss was decorated with the ribbon of Nicham Iftikar, the highest Tunisian award, by the French Resident General, M. Perellier, who also addressed the assembly. Other speakers included General Tahar Maoui, representative of the Bey of Tunisia; high Tunisian Government officials; the Chief Rabbi of Tunisia, representatives of the Jewish community, of ORT, the Alliance and the Joint Distribution Committee. The inauguration of the Tunis school marks the further expansion of the ORT program in North Africa where, since 1949, Jewish youth have received training in numerous skills in Morocco and Algeria.

MONTREAL MEETINGS

● Intercollegiate Zionist Federation of America had present, one hundred delegates, at the convention, held near Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. Arthur Roskies, a student of the Philadelphia Textile Institute, was elected national president. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. Roskies, Prince Albert Avenue, Montreal; and a graduate of McGill University. In a session devoted to IZFA-Hillel relations, in which Rabbi Alfred Jospe, national program director of Hillel, participated, the convention affirmed the stand that IZFA should be an active and positive nucleus within Hillel. Cantor Hecker, who has served as a part-time coach at the school, will become a full-time member of the faculty in the fall, and will also continue in his post as cantor and music director of Temple Gates of Prayer, in Flushing, which he has served for the past four years. While a student at the school, he served as cantor at Temple Emanuel, in Union City, N.J. Born in Czechoslovakia, Cantor Hecker migrated to Canada in 1941. He served with the Canadian Army for four years in the Quartermasters Corps and with the Canadian Army show. He studied at the Conservatory of Music at McGill University and sang for two years with the Opera Guild of Montreal. Cantor Hecker came to the United States to study Jewish sacred music under a subvention from the Canadian Government Veterans Rehabilitation Plan.

The late Abraham Raginsky was the husband of Mrs. Anna Raginsky of Montreal, honourary president of Canadian Hadassah; and national chairman of the Jewish National Fund of Canada. During his lifetime Mr. Raginsky established scholarships in Torah at local Talmud Torahs and at seminaries in various cities of the American continent. He also played a prominent part in the Hebrew Free Loan Society of Montreal and of Jerusalem and was President of B'nai Jacob Synagogue, Montreal, from 1930 until his death in 1942. He was a member of the National Board of the Zionist Organization of Canada; and worked for the Montefiore Hebrew Orphanage. Mr. Segall is president of the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society, of Montreal. Ascher Segall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Segall, and co-creator of the scholarship, who is studying at the University of Lausanne in Switzerland, is aged twenty-two. He has represented Keren Hayesod at international conferences; and was a member of Kibbutz Galed. He plans to become a doctor of medicine in Israel, and to complete his studies at the Hebrew University, although it was not possible for the University to provide the course of study with respect to first year medicine, during the 1950-51 school year. Michael Greenblatt, Chairman of the Montreal Chapter of the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University, congratulated the Segall family, on establishing the scholarship in pre-medicine before such studies have been begun at the University. During May sixty-three students passed their final examinations at the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School. They are the first doctors ever to have graduated in Israel and now are beginning their internships. All these young people obtained their pre-medical training in foreign countries and upon outbreak of the Jewish War for Independence came to Israel to defend the newly created state. Subsequently at the request of the Government the University's School of Medicine was opened earlier than planned in order to provide these student-fighters with an opportunity to complete the last two years of their medical studies. In the meantime the University has been making further plans for opening the first two years of Medical School as well as undergraduate studies in pre-medicine.

What Liberal Judaism Hopes To Achieve

BY DR. I. I. MATTUCK, RABBI, OF THE LIBERAL SYNAGOGUE, LONDON, ENGLAND

The advances which Liberal Judaism is making are among Jews who have turned away from Orthodoxy and have become, or were becoming, indifferent to Judaism. Anyone who sincerely and honestly wished to spread the power and influence of Judaism among Jews would join with us in thanking God for the "inroads" which Liberal Judaism is making among the people.

Further testimony of its power comes from other Orthodox Jewish leaders. While the Ecclesiastical Authorities complain about the progress of Liberal Judaism, some Orthodox Jewish ministers plead that Orthodoxy should adopt some of the changes which Liberal Judaism has made. Both the complaints of the Dayan and the plea of these ministers support our belief that Liberal Judaism can strengthen loyalty to Judaism where it is now weak.

The second aim of Liberal Judaism is to make religion paramount in the group life of the Jews. In this we share a task with many sincerely Orthodox Jews and, together with them, when possible, we have to combat the secularisation of Jewish life which has, in our time, attained increasing strength. Liberal Judaism can, however, address itself to that task with some hope of success because it applies Judaism to the life of the Jews in all lands, and puts it into the framework of modern thought. In this way it can impress on Jews everywhere the realisation that Jews live by their religion and for their religion. The obvious importance of this realisation reveals, without further elaboration, the importance of this second aim of Liberal Judaism.

The third aim is to proclaim the universal message of Judaism so as to contribute its influence to the religious life of the general community. It means, in the first place, to promote among non-Jews a better understanding of the ideas and principles of Judaism. They have sometimes shown an interest in its quaint ceremonies and antique institutions; but what we want is for non-Jews to know the significance of Judaism for the spirit of man and for his conduct, to see that Judaism is not a parochial religion, or a mere cult for Jews, but that it has a religious message for the world. We want the world to understand what Judaism is, in order that Judaism may influence the world.

Our times are distracted, bewildered in thought, and uncertain in conduct. It is a gross betrayal of the trust which history — yes, and the God of history — has put upon the Jews if, at a time like this, Judaism has nothing to say to the world which would help it to find a way through the darkness and through the maze which beset it. I venture to think that in America and in this country Liberal Judaism has already achieved something towards this aim, but much more has to be done, Jews themselves have to be roused to the realisation of this bigger, larger, universal Judaism.

There has, unfortunately, grown up in recent years a tendency even among Progressive Jews to make Judaism a small religion, to confine it within the narrow compass of Jewish observances. That is not the Judaism of the Prophets, nor is it the Judaism of history, nor — it is a dangerous statement, but I believe it to be true and I will make it — nor is it the kind of Judaism that deserves to live.

To conclude and to sum up: it is the aim of Liberal Judaism to reach the minds and the hearts of Jews with the truth and the power of the Jewish faith in God, the Jewish faith in man and the Jewish faith in the universe. It is its aim to fill the mind and the heart of the Jew with a larger vision, a deeper faith and a higher sense of his responsibility. It is the aim of Liberal Judaism to arouse the Jewish people to a realisation of their religious purpose, their religious service, their religious destiny. It is the aim of Liberal Judaism to make Judaism a living force, an influence in the world making for spiritual, moral and social progress.

Can it succeed in these aims? The answer to that question is the answer to another question: Can Judaism live? By as much as Liberal Judaism can succeed in achieving its aims, Judaism will live. And we have this to give us hope: in pursuing these aims, Liberal Judaism follows the spirit of the Prophets. They live, and the Judaism which is informed by their spirit can hope, if it is faithful to that spirit, to progress towards the achievement of its Jewish aims.

Refugee Couple Get College Degrees On 11th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Weiss celebrated their eleventh wedding anniversary, in New York, when they graduated together at City College's 105th commencement. The couple, who live at 540 West 167th Street, Manhattan, were students in the evening session and sat side by side in a number of classes. Mr. Weiss received a Bachelor of Social Science degree in government and economics. His wife, Franzi, who taught languages in European schools, received a Bachelor of Science degree in education.

Born in Vienna, Mr. Weiss, who is 43 years old, and his wife, 41, were forced to flee from the Nazis in 1939. They were married in England in 1940 and later that year came to the United States. Between that time and 1947, when the Weisses registered at City College, the couple held jobs in a bakery, a book store and a nursery. They have no children.

Since their education in Europe was interrupted the couple is eager to continue and both plan to go on to graduate work. Mr. Weiss, an employe of the New York State Insurance Fund, will study for a master's degree and Mrs. Weiss, a secretary for the New York State Department of Labour, has been admitted to the New York School of Social Work.

As a result of their own experience, Mr. and Mrs. Weiss strongly favor adult education. "There's no such thing as being too old to learn," says Mrs. Weiss. "And in our case, at least, we've found that as you get older education means more to you and you get more out of it."

JEWS ATTACK

Justice Anthony Di Giovanna dismissing the application for an order directing the New York City Board of Education and the State Education Commissioner to discontinue the released-time program.

Mr. Zorach and Mrs. Gluck, both parents of children attending grade schools in Brooklyn, contend that the New York City released-time program is unconstitutional under a 1948 decision of the United States Supreme Court.

In that case, brought by Mrs. Vashti McCollum, the Supreme Court held that the Champaign, Ill., practice of releasing school children for religious classes violated the constitutional guarantee of separation of church and state and constituted the use of tax-supported property for religious instruction.

The Solicitor General, who appeared on behalf of the State Education Department, asserted that the New York program was entirely different from that involved in the McCollum case. In that case, he said, sectarian religious classes were conducted in the regular classrooms of school buildings by teachers under the supervision of the superintendent of schools.

In New York, he said, the enabling statute "is merely one for absence from attendance at school for religious observance or education."

Kenneth W. Greenwalt, attorney for Mr. Zorach and Mrs. Gluck, contended that the Supreme Court had invalidated "the use of the tax-supported public school machinery as a recruiting, evangelizing or channeling agency for sectarian groups," and not merely the incidental details of the Champaign system.

Asserting that the children of both petitioners attend religious schools entirely independent of the public school system and that no anti-religious considerations were involved in the action, he said:

"There is absolutely no justification for the remark in the opinion of Special Term that the granting of the relief sought . . . 'would be a step in the direction of . . . totalitarian and Communistic philosophies existing in jurisdictions where' in atheism and the suppression of all religions are preferred to the freedom of the individual to seek religious instruction and worship.'"

Arguing for the New York City Board of Education, Michael A. Castaldi pointed out that the Court of Appeals rejected an earlier action challenging the constitutionality of a released-time program operating in the city of White Plains. He said the White Plains program was essentially the same as that in operation in New York City, and that both differed from the "Champaign plan" in "crucial respects."

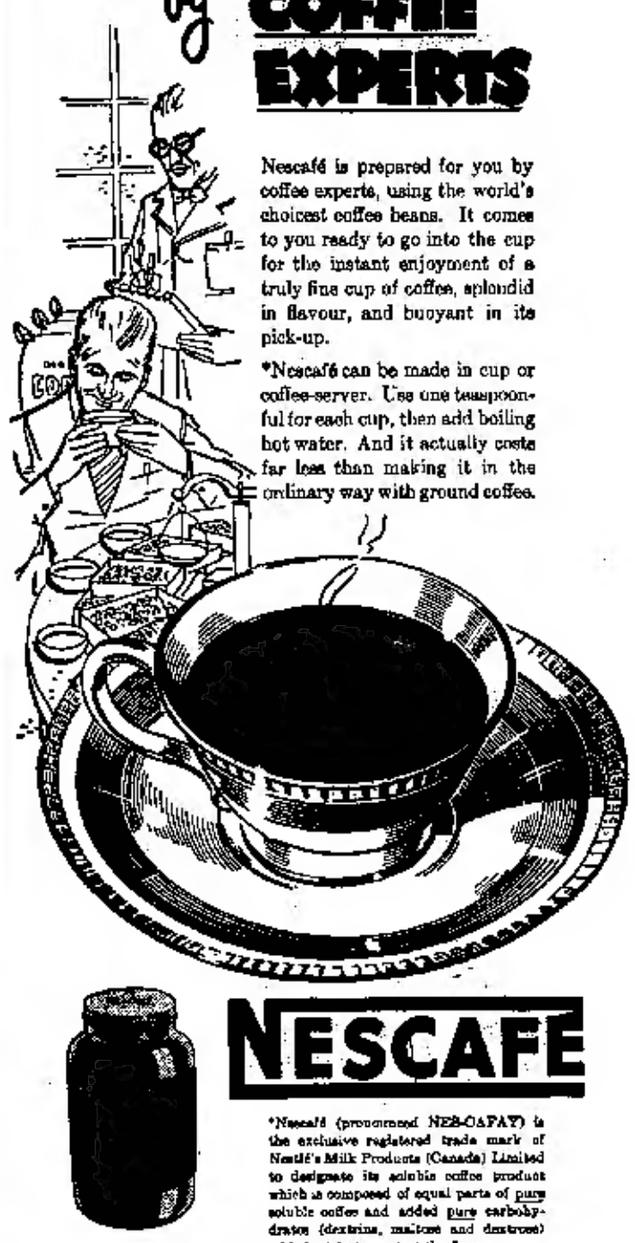
Made for you by COFFEE EXPERTS



Nescafé is prepared for you by coffee experts, using the world's choicest coffee beans. It comes to you ready to go into the cup for the instant enjoyment of a truly fine cup of coffee, splendid in flavour, and buoyant in its pick-up.

*Nescafé can be made in cup or coffee-server. Use one teaspoonful for each cup, then add boiling hot water. And it actually costs far less than making it in the ordinary way with ground coffee.

NESCAFE

*Nescafé (pronounced NES-CAFAY) is the exclusive registered trade mark of Nestlé's Milk Products (Canada) Limited to designate its soluble coffee product which is composed of equal parts of pure soluble coffee and added pure carbohydrates (dextrins, maltose and dextrose) added solely to protect the flavor.
